OSTEOPATHIC OATH

I do hereby affirm my loyalty to the profession I am about to enter.

I will be mindful always of my great responsibility to preserve the health and life of my patients, to retain their confidence and respect, both as a physician and a friend who will guard their secrets with scrupulous honor and fidelity, to perform faithfully my professional duties, to employ only those recognized methods of treatment consistent with good judgment and with my skill and ability, keeping in mind always nature's laws and the body's inherent capacity for recovery.

I will ever be vigilant in aiding the general welfare of the community, sustaining its laws and institutions, not engaging in those practices which will in any way bring shame or discredit upon myself or my profession.

I will give no deadly drugs to any, though it be asked of me.

I will endeavor to work in accord with my colleagues in a spirit of progressive cooperation and never by word or act cast imputations upon them or their rightful practices.

I will look with respect and esteem upon all those who have taught me my art.

To my college, I will be loyal and strive always for its best and for the interests of the students who will come after me.

I will be ever alert to and adhere to and develop the principles of Osteopathy as taught by Andrew Taylor Still.

HIPPOCRATIC OATH

I swear by Apollo the physician, and Aesculapius, and Hygeia, and Panacea, and all the gods, and goddesses that according to my ability and judgment:

I will keep this oath and this stipulation—to reckon him who taught me this art equally dear to me as my parents, to share my share my substance with him, and relieve his necessities if required upon his offspring in the same footing as my own brothers and teach them this art if they shall wish to learn it.

Without fee or stipulation and by precept, lecture and every other mode of instruction, I will impart a knowledge of the art to my own sons, and those of my teachers, and to disciples bound by a stipulation and oath.

According to the law of medicine but to no other, I will follow the system of regime which, according to my ability and judgment, I consider.

For the benefit of my patients and abstain from whatever is deleterious and mischievous, I will give no deadly medicine to anyone if asked nor suggest such counsel and in like manner I will not give to a woman a pessary to produce abortion.

With purity and holiness I will pass my life and practice my art. I will not cut persons laboring under the stone, but will leave this art to be done by men who are practitioners of this work.

Into whatever houses I enter, I will go unto them for the benefit of the sick, and will abstain from every voluntary act of mischief and corruption; and further from the seduction of females or males, of freemen and slaves. Whatever in connection with my professional practice or not in connection with it, I see or hear, in the life of men, which ought not be spoken of abroad.

I will not divulge as reckoning that all such should be kept secret. While I continue to keep this oath unviolatd, may it be granted to me to enjoy life and the practice of the art respected by all men in all times! But should I trespass and violate this oath, may the reverse be my lot!

TOBIAS SHILD, D.O., M.Sc., (Ost.)
Professor-Chairman

DEDICATED TO THE DEPARTMENT OF PATHOLOGY . . .

Teaching pathology, which truly encompasses the body of medicine, is a formidable challenge. The Pathology Department, under the direction of Dr. Tobias Shild, has succeeded in meeting this challenge.

In a field devoted to objective analyses based on finite values, you have given us an insight into the vagaries and subtleties of disease.

In a field concentrating on the microscopic study of the fragments of the human fabric, you have given us an appreciation of the whole.

In a field based upon the science of medicine, you have given us respect for the art of medicine.

Whether in the capable lecture presentations of Dr. Shild, the painstakingly thorough study of tissues under Dr. Greenwald, or the practical applications of clinical laboratory methods by Dr. Waddel, your concern for us was always apparent.

Therefore, in dedicating this book to you we also dedicate ourselves to being worthy of your labors with us as a class, as well as your consideration for us as individuals.

RECOGNITION

DR. GERALD SCHARF

"Hi, Al — how ah yah?! What's that? She is? Hm, hmm! Great case! Call me back in five minutes. I'll see if I can get her a bed ... Hello! Miss Mulhern? ..."

With these words the White Knight is off again on his quest to slay the Dragon of Disease in the name of Dame Medicine on the battlefield of the Healing Arts.

His example to us is not unlike the effect of the simile above on youngsters. Eager is a mild word to describe his approach to a new challenge — whether it be in the form of a group of puzzling symptoms or a group of puzzled students. Whether treating a disease process or explaining one, his capability, his enthusiasm and confidence is truly infectious. Our gratitude, Jerry, for your candor, your wisdom and the stamina we've developed while following you on rounds.

To the Class of 1963:

I extend to each of you my personal, as well as official, congratulations on the occasion of your being graduated from Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. The College is proud to have made it possible for you to become an osteopathic physician. We hope that your consciousness of the opportunity which has been given to you will motivate you to support your Alma Mater so that the opportunity may be given to others who will follow you and support you as fellow members of a great profession.

You already sense the tide of change in science and in the clinical application of new knowledge. I am sure you also sense, too, that the role of the osteopathic physician is moving rapidly to a place of greater importance in the world of medicine. I hope that each of you will, in his own way, be part of this great forward movement and that to the satisfaction that comes from giving superior care to patients will be added the thrill of being a contributing part of the improvement of health care all over the world.

With warm best wishes and high hopes for you all.

Sincerely yours,
Dr. Frederic H. Barth, President

DEAN

To the Class of 1963:

The essential characteristic of education is that it never stops. Movement, change, pace and redirection are paradoxically the essence of what is often considered the stable base of a culture. The cycle of education is marked by a series of events called commencements. You have now reached another and probably, for most of you, a last commencement. I wish to congratulate each of you on achieving the degree of Doctor of Osteopathy. I welcome you on behalf of the Osteopathic Profession to a life of study and service. Philadelphia College of Osteopathy is proud to call you sons and daughters, and it hopes that you will keep vital the ties that bind your alma mater to you. Philadelphia College of Osteopathy pledges its help whenever it can be of service, and it hopes that as you care for your patients you will study with us from time to time in your interest, in our interest, but above all in your patients' interest.

Each of you has my cordial best wishes for a happy life, a prosperous practice, and a full measure of satisfaction from your service to your patients.

PRESIDENT OF A.O.A.

Greetings to the Class of 1963, Philadelphia College of Osteopathy:

As this is being written you of the Class of 1963 are preparing for the final tests that will qualify you to leave your Alma Mater and proceed to the area of advanced clinical training in the profession of Osteopathy. You have been aided in acquiring the basic fundamentals on which to build a sound future and contribute to the health care of the peoples of this troubled world.

The alumni of P.C.O throughout the past sixty years have provided many strong and influential leaders of the Osteopathic Profession. Your class members will soon be added to this reservoir of learning and teaching. I look forward with great anticipation to your contributions to the growth and independence of the Osteopathic Profession and to your influence and respect in the stature of the D.O. degree. This degree represents the greatest truth that America has contributed to the healing arts. May this profession which was founded by a pioneer in American medicine continue to be developed by you who have accepted the challenge of this pioneer spirit.

Sincerely
Charles W. Sauter, 2nd, D.O.

THANKS WALT from your classmates

Our thanks for leading us along the narrow path to graduation, for pointing out the pitfalls and smoothing many of the bumps along the way. Yours was a difficult and often thankless task, which you not only succeeded in doing well but in the course of doing it, managed to act as confidant, advisor and friend to faculty and fellow students alike.

IN MEMORIAM

HAROLD L. BRUNER, D.O., F.A.C.O.I.

The sudden and tragic death of Dr. H. L. Bruner has left a void in the ranks of physicians that will not soon be filled; a void that is felt not just by those who were privileged to know him, but by the entire Profession. We who were his students feel the loss acutely. He left with us, however, an endowment of a friend, physician, teacher and example of the highest form in the Profession we are about to enter.

IN MEMORIAM

DR. ABRAHAM LEVIN D.O.

The end of a man is not simultaneous with the termination of his life. He lives on not only in the memory of those who commanded his help but, in the case of a physician, he is often at least partly responsible for their contributions also; he lives on in the gifts he has made in the time allotted him; he lives on in the knowledge shared with his juniors and in the wisdom offered for those able to grasp it. He lives on as an example which others can attempt to emulate.

To us this man lives on in the memory of the brilliance and dexterity of hands and mind that were Dr. Abe Levin.

This is a capsule...

● ● ● and it looks deceptively simple. Certainly not as complex as an x-ray machine, a fully equipped operating room, or a modern pharmaceutical analysis laboratory. But appearances can be deceiving. Into this capsule went countless hours of research, the clinical investigation of thousands of patients by scores of physicians and—finally—painstaking manufacturing controls. And—with the help of this capsule—physicians are able to provide more effective care for their patients.

Smith Kline & French Laboratories is dedicated to the discovery and manufacture of these seemingly simple medicines . . . prescription drugs which have revolutionized the physician's treatment of his patients.

SMITH KLINE & FRENCH LABORATORIES

the sounds of life -now your challenge

The many sounds and rhythms of life now have your ear. Your skills are challenged . . . to modulate discordant tones, to maintain healthy ones.

Standing with you are many scientific colleagues in Wyeth Laboratories. Their challenge is to provide you with new agents to complement your hard-earned skills, your training, and professional knowledge.

Wyeth pledges:

to supply you with products of therapeutic merit, and with adequate information about their use a continuing search for new and useful pharmaceuticals, biologicals, and nutritionals readily available services through well informed representatives from

THE PENNSYLVANIA
OSTEOPATHIC ASSOCIATION

(A DIVISIONAL SOCIETY OF THE A.O.A.)

The Pennsylvania Osteopathic Association has been your official representative of the osteopathic profession in Pennsylvania since 1901. The purpose of the P.O.A. is to promote public health: by elevation and maintenance of high standards of osteopathic education; by the stimulation of research and investigation; by the collection and dissemination of such knowledge for the education and improvement of the profession and for the benefit of humanity.

The P.O.A. is dedicated to the purpose of rendering service and assistance to each and every osteopathic physician and surgeon within its ranks.

Free memberships are extended to interns, residents, and those physicians in their first year of practice.

To become a member, you need only to apply to the P.O.A. at 1941 Market Street, Harrisburg, Pa. Your membership will help strengthen your profession and your State organization.
